

Be an escape artist

The Greensboro Fire Department works hard to protect you from getting injured by fire. If a fire starts in your home, you need a plan to escape. You can create a fire escape map in the box below to show how you would get out of your house in case of an emergency or fire. Draw a line from your bedroom to at least two exits from your house, such as the front door or side door. Have your parents help you plan and practice the safety route together. Draw where the smoke alarms and fire extinguishers are located in your house.

Example:

Early Greensboro residents had to keep a ladder leaning against the side of their house in case of fire so firefighters could climb onto the roof.
